1. Introduction and Background

Fugro Technical Services Limited was requested by VW-VES (HK) Ltd. to provide radon monitoring measurement for Sludge Treatment Facilities in East Ash Lagoon area at Tsang Tsui near Nim Wan, Tuen Mun. Radon measurement was conducted from 4 May 2015 to 26 June 2015.

Radon measurement is performed in accordance with ProPECC PN 1/99 "Environmental Protection Department Practice Note for Professional Persons - Control of Radon Concentration in New Buildings" (Practice Note) published by Environmental Protection Department of the HKSAR Government in 1999.

2. Approach and Methodology

Radon measurement was conducted from 4 May 2015 to 26 June 2015.

Electronic real-time radon monitors complying with the competence test of the US Environmental Protection Agency were used which were calibrated and operated in accordance with the manufacturer's recommendation. The duration for each measurement was 48 hours continuously with each reading averaged over a 30-minute interval.

The measurement protocol for radon is summarised as below.

Table 2.1 Measurement protocol

| Parameter | Methodology  | Equipment used | Sampling period                |
|-----------|--|----------------|--------------------------------|
| Radon     | Measured by electronic radon monitor with solid state alpha detector | DURRIDGE RAD 7 | 48-hour continuous measurement |

Calibration certificates are attached in Appendix 1.

The average radon concentration during the measurement period should preferably be lower than the territory-wide mean concentration of 100 Bq/m<sup>3</sup> and in any case, any individual measurement must not exceed 200 Bq/m<sup>3</sup>.

The objective of radon monitoring is summarised as follows in accordance with the Practice Note.

Table 2.2 Objective for Radon Monitoring

| Parameter                  | Individual Maximum Reading |
|----------------------------|----------------------------|
| Radon (Bq/m <sup>3</sup> ) | ≤ 200                      |

3 Sampling Locations

There are 45 sampling locations to be measured.

1. Introduction and Background

Fugro Technical Services Limited was requested by VW-VES (HK) Ltd. to provide radon monitoring measurement for Sludge Treatment Facilities in East Ash Lagoon area at Tsang Tsui near Nim Wan, Tuen Mun. Radon measurement was conducted from 3 August 2015 to 28 October 2015.

Radon measurement is performed in accordance with ProPECC PN 1/99 "Environmental Protection Department Practice Note for Professional Persons - Control of Radon Concentration in New Buildings" (Practice Note) published by Environmental Protection Department of the HKSAR Government in 1999.

2. Approach and Methodology

Radon measurement was conducted from 3 August 2015 to 28 October 2015.

Electronic real-time radon monitors complying with the competence test of the US Environmental Protection Agency were used which were calibrated and operated in accordance with the manufacturer's recommendation. The duration for each measurement was 48 hours continuously with each reading averaged over a 30-minute interval.

The measurement protocol for radon is summarised as below.

Table 2.1 Measurement protocol

| Parameter | Methodology  | Equipment used | Sampling period                |
|-----------|--|----------------|--------------------------------|
| Radon     | Measured by electronic radon monitor with solid state alpha detector | DURRIDGE RAD 7 | 48-hour continuous measurement |

Calibration certificates are attached in Appendix 1.

The average radon concentration during the measurement period should preferably be lower than the territory-wide mean concentration of 100 Bq/m<sup>3</sup> and in any case, any individual measurement must not exceed 200 Bq/m<sup>3</sup>.

The objective of radon monitoring is summarised as follows in accordance with the Practice Note.

Table 2.2 Objective for Radon Monitoring

| Parameter                  | Individual Maximum Reading |
|----------------------------|----------------------------|
| Radon (Bq/m <sup>3</sup> ) | ≤ 200                      |

1. Introduction and Background

Fugro Technical Services Limited was requested by VW-VES (HK) Ltd. to provide radon monitoring measurement for Sludge Treatment Facilities in East Ash Lagoon area at Tsang Tsui near Nim Wan, Tuen Mun. Radon measurement was conducted from 28 October 2015 to 9 December 2015.

Radon measurement is performed in accordance with ProPECC PN 1/99 "Environmental Protection Department Practice Note for Professional Persons - Control of Radon Concentration in New Buildings" (Practice Note) published by Environmental Protection Department of the HKSAR Government in 1999.

2. Approach and Methodology

Radon measurement was conducted from 28 October 2015 to 9 December 2015.

Electronic real-time radon monitors complying with the competence test of the US Environmental Protection Agency were used which were calibrated and operated in accordance with the manufacturer's recommendation. The duration for each measurement was 48 hours continuously with each reading averaged over a 30-minute interval.

The measurement protocol for radon is summarised as below.

Table 2.1 Measurement protocol

| Parameter | Methodology  | Equipment used | Sampling period                |
|-----------|--|----------------|--------------------------------|
| Radon     | Measured by electronic radon monitor with solid state alpha detector | DURRIDGE RAD 7 | 48-hour continuous measurement |

Calibration certificates are attached in Appendix 1.

The average radon concentration during the measurement period should preferably be lower than the territory-wide mean concentration of 100 Bq/m<sup>3</sup> and in any case, any individual measurement must not exceed 200 Bq/m<sup>3</sup>.

The objective of radon monitoring is summarised as follows in accordance with the Practice Note.

Table 2.2 Objective for Radon Monitoring

| Parameter                  | Individual Maximum Reading |
|----------------------------|----------------------------|
| Radon (Bq/m <sup>3</sup> ) | ≤ 200                      |

1. Introduction and Background

Fugro Technical Services Limited was requested by VW-VES (HK) Ltd. to provide radon monitoring measurement for Sludge Treatment Facilities in East Ash Lagoon area at Tsang Tsui near Nim Wan, Tuen Mun. Radon measurement was conducted from 22 January 2016 to 4 March 2016.

Radon measurement is performed in accordance with ProPECC PN 1/99 "Environmental Protection Department Practice Note for Professional Persons - Control of Radon Concentration in New Buildings" (Practice Note) published by Environmental Protection Department of the HKSAR Government in 1999.

2. Approach and Methodology

Radon measurement was conducted from 22 January 2016 to 4 March 2016.

Electronic real-time radon monitors complying with the competence test of the US Environmental Protection Agency were used which were calibrated and operated in accordance with the manufacturer's recommendation. The duration for each measurement was 48 hours continuously with each reading averaged over a 30-minute interval.

The measurement protocol for radon is summarised as below.

Table 2.1 Measurement protocol

| Parameter | Methodology  | Equipment used | Sampling period                |
|-----------|--|----------------|--------------------------------|
| Radon     | Measured by electronic radon monitor with solid state alpha detector | DURRIDGE RAD 7 | 48-hour continuous measurement |

Calibration certificates are attached in Appendix 1.

The average radon concentration during the measurement period should preferably be lower than the territory-wide mean concentration of 100 Bq/m<sup>3</sup> and in any case, any individual measurement must not exceed 200 Bq/m<sup>3</sup>.

The objective of radon monitoring is summarised as follows in accordance with the Practice Note.

Table 2.2 Objective for Radon Monitoring

| Parameter                  | Individual Maximum Reading |
|----------------------------|----------------------------|
| Radon (Bq/m <sup>3</sup> ) | ≤ 200                      |

3 Sampling Locations

There are 45 sampling locations to be measured.
