

Dear Sir/Madam,

With reference to this public consultation paper, I personally express my comments that the Government did not respond well to the past water pollution issue but for the good sake of our children and our natural resources, it is good to have this scheme in place.

However, I am very confused that most of the harmful substances and material buried in the Victoria sea bed are mostly and widely disturbed by the sea-land reclamation projects.? This seems to me that HKSAR Government stirs up the toxins and heavy metals dumps in the Victoria sea bed, and the Government will clean this toxins up on the other line using huge amount of resources and money.

I personally deem that a better Government policy and future planning inside Government should be well-coordinated.

Thank you.

Regards,

Dr Grantham K H Lee., B.Sc(London).,Ph.D(London).,C.Chem.,MRSC